E-Mail:

Gemma wrote me an email yesterday.

She wrote that it was very nice to hear from me again. She had had a very interesting summer. She had gone to France for six weeks where she and her parents had been working on an animal rescue farm. She and two others at her age, a boy and a girl, had taken care of some dogs that had been rescued from the streets. Some of the dogs had been very sick and had been lying in their cages all the time, but other dogs had been better and they had played with them a lot.

She also wrote that with that mail she sent me a picture of her and her favourite dog Laurie. She thought that he was so cute. She had wanted to bring him home with her but her parents hadn't wanted to. She hoped that she would finish looking through all her photos that week and could send me some more pictures.

She explained that the best thing was that they could go there again next year. She had talked to her parents the day before and they said that I might come with them. She asked me what I thought.

She also asked me how my holidays had been. She hoped to see me in school the next day.

Gemma wished me all the best.
